WHEN JOHNNIE COMES MARCHING HOME

By DOROTHY DIX, The World's Highest Paid Woman Writer

FASHION HINT

The country is full of war brides. Thousands of young girls have had a brief, hectic, and romantic wooing, a hurried wedding, a few days or weeks of a golden honeymoon, and then the young husbands sailed away to the hell where the battle rages.

It is an abnormal existence into which these brides have entered. Under ordinary conditions it would be with them the happiest time of life—the time of nest building—the time of starting a new home, of buying new furniture, of embroidering dollies, monogramming towels, thrilling over shining pots and pans, and all the dear delights of one's first housekeeping that keep the young wife busy and satisfied.

All of that cheerful, normal life is denied to the war bride. Her life is set to the tune of watchful waiting, of waiting for the war to be over, and her man to come back. Of watching for every word and every whisper that comes over seas of news of the dear ones whose danger only her imagination can forecast. She has no new home and new furniture to fuss over. She cannot assuage her anxiety with piffing needlework, for hand-embroidered linen is a poor thing on which to lean in a world crisis.

She can only watch and wait for whatever fate sends her. It is a situation that calls for strength and wisdom beyond that usually possessed by sweet-and-twenty, and it makes those of us who are older, and who have had more experience of life, want to stretch a helping hand to these little war brides, and whisper a word of counsel to them.

And the first bit of advice that I would give to them is to go to work. To find some congenial, absorbing occupation in which they can throw themselves, heart and soul, and which will keep them so busy that they will not have to think of what may be happening over there.

There is no antidote for sorrow like work. There is nothing that soothes the nerves like having to grapple daily and hourly with some task that requires a steady hand and a clear head to accomplish. There is nothing that keeps one free of morbidness like coming in continual contact with the problems of humanity, and seeing how little a part one's own cares and anxieties play in the great scheme of things.

Get busy. At a time like this for any woman to sit with folded, empty, idle hands is for her to be a slacker and a quitter, and the woman who is not doing some useful constructive work for her country is a coward and a dastard. She is even more despicable than the healthy, husky man who is a draft dodger, because she cannot be conscripted. Her services to the country must be voluntary. It is up to her honor to give them.

Certainly the war bride who sits at home and weeps, and nurses her anxieties and her fears, is not worthy of her soldier husband. Her tears will not safeguard him, but the work of her hands and her brain will, for she can make the things that he needs to fight with, and she can release for service a man who will fight by his side and help him to win out.

Another reason why the war bride should go to work is because she will prepare herself for whatever the future may bring her. Only those shut their eyes to possibilities because they are unpleasant to contemplate. It is inevitable that many of these gallant young husbands will have come forth so strong, sturdy and beautiful, will come back broken and mangled wrecks of the men they were when they went away. In many cases it will be the part of the woman to become the bread winner, and be the sturdy little oak instead of the flapping vine.

And any woman who is thus called upon to support a man who has given her all in defense of womankind, and that the women of his own country might be protected from the fate of the women of Flanders, and eastern France, should feel that a high and holy duty has been laid upon her. She has been called to minister to one of the great and heroic ones of earth, but she can only do this if she has fitted herself to do it.

In a practical world it takes knowledge and skill and efficiency and experience to make money. It is only the trained workers who can command good salaries, and this is why I urge every war bride, who has not an independent fortune, not to waste these precious months in idle and futile waiting, but to go to work and learn how to do some one thing well enough to enable her to hold down a good job, and take care of her man in comfort if it is ever her sad necessity to do so.

Remember that this misfortune is bound to come to many women. It may come to you. Take the sting out of it by preparedness.

Another bit of advice that I would give to the war brides is this—make yourself worthy of your soldier husband. Make of yourselves the kind of women that your husbands will want when they come back from the war.

Just consider this fact seriously. A boy has left you to go to the front. He's a kid who thinks more about dancing and having a good time than anything else, and if you are pretty, jolly, know how to dress and do your hair in the latest way and have picked up the newest dance step, you satisfy him because you are both on the same level, have the same background and are interested in the same things.

But when he put on the khaki, and the big, flat army shoes, he turned off into a different path from yours. He's gone abroad to take part in the greatest adventure any human being has ever engaged in. All of the little ordinary world of pleasures and joys, hopes and anxieties, that you had part in are swept away. He is grappling now with immortal issues. He is dealing with life and death, and he is living more in a single month, learning more, changing more than he would in thirty years of normal life.

No man who goes through this war will come out of it as he went into it. He will be a changed man, bigger, broader, wiser, more serious, with the boyhood swept out of him forever, and when he gets back to little stuffy-ruffles, who hasn't a thought in her head except clothes and cabarets is going to satisfy him as a wife.

He isn't going to want a baby doll. No. The man who has seen the martyred women of France and Belgium; the man who has seen women who have faced death without a tear or a whimper; who has seen a whole womanhood rise to the support of its country; who has seen the highest, noblest and the most luxuriously reared women putting aside all thoughts of ease and going to work in factories and fields to support their men at the front, is going to want for a wife a real woman—a woman who has developed strength, sympathy and the ability to sacrifice.

You haven't got time to sit down and cry for your soldier boy, little war bride. Be up and doing, and get ready to meet him with your banners flying when Johnnie comes marching home.

MAYOR OF DENVER CALLED BY DEATH

Robert W. Speer, Widely Known Man, Dies After Short Illness of Pneumonia.

DENVER, May 14.—Robert W. Speer, mayor of Denver, and widely known throughout the country as an authority on municipal government, died here this afternoon after a short illness of pneumonia.

Mayor Speer left his desk early in May to recuperate from a cold. This developed into pneumonia, because of a weakened condition due to overwork, his physicians said.

Mr. Speer had been mayor three times, twice from 1904 to 1912 and then in 1916, being again elected under a charter which, it is said, gave him more power than any other American mayor so far as having a free hand is concerned. It was he who originated Denver's system of mountain parks and boulevards, building the city auditorium, public bath houses and other improvements. He also inaugurated the plan of the city selling coal to its people at a great reduction over the prices charged by independent companies.

Mr. Speer was 64 years old. He came to Denver when he was 22 years old in search of health. At 25 he was elected city clerk on the Democratic ticket and throughout succeeding years held many political positions.

OFFENSIVE SO FAR PROVED A FAILURE

Great Drive by Germans Is Costly—Expect to Bar Navigation on North Coast.

COPENHAGEN, May 14.—The Germans are still of the belief that they will be able to reach the English channel coast, bar navigation of the waters and bombard southern England, and that then will be easy to begin peace negotiations, according to an interview the Politiken has had with a prominent German politician, a member of the reichstag, who requested that his name be not used. He added that the German offensive thus far had proved a failure, owing to heavy losses, and that the German high command was waiting to obtain more artillery. Germany had lost 1,000,000 men, wounded and made prisoner 3,000,000 men, he added.

Answering questions about the opinion of the reichstag main committee on the situation on the western front and the end of the war, the newspaper's informant said:

"We still believe, according to messages from our military leaders, that we shall reach the north coast, where our guns can bar navigation of the channel and fire at south England. It is suggested from the German side that with this another course of the war will commence, and, as far as Germany is concerned, it will be very easy to start armistice negotiations, as, despite all assertions, we do not aim at any conquering. We want neither the nine districts of Lorraine's west frontier nor Antwerp.

Admit Losses of 3,000,000 Men. "We have lost, including killed, wounded and prisoners, 3,000,000 men. Do you think that we intend to make foolish claims and send our children through another four years of war? Moreover, we shall have enough to do during the age of man to control the new Russian country and secure their mercantile and industrial influence. Responsible German politicians only demand that the western powers shall give back our colonies."

German Cavalry Moving Westward. LONDON, May 14.—Reports from Liege say that one cavalry division from Rumania has passed through Liege going westward, and that more troops from Rumania are expected on the Belgian front, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Amsterdam.

"Orders have been given for all other traffic on the railways to stop in order to allow these troops to pass," the correspondent adds.

It is probable that the cavalry referred to by the correspondent belongs to the German forces which were operating in Rumania, and have been released from that front through the signing of the peace treaty between Rumania and the central powers.

O'NEILL SPEAKS TO SALT LAKERS

Representative of Alien Property Custodian Gives Talk—West Doing Its Share.

SALT LAKE, May 15.—At this time when the supreme issue of the moment is the winning of the war, requiring concentrated and consecrated effort in every way, it is a misdemeanor for a man to buy his wife a $50 hat and for him to buy her a $1000 evening gown is a positive felony.

This is the manner in which Harry E. O'Neill, special representative of the alien property custodian at Washington, emphasized the necessity for elimination of non-essentials during the war, in a pointed address before the Salt Lake Rotary club at its luncheon at the Hotel Utah yesterday noon.

Mr. O'Neill, who is in Salt Lake for the purpose of checking up and securing a record of all enemy alien property, including that of the enemy aliens interned at Fort Douglas, that the alien property custodian may take charge of the administration of it, addressed the Rotary club on Washington, D. C., as the war heart of the nation that is working night and day to bring victory to the standard of the allies in the great world war.

Compliments West.

Remarking that he has spent some time in Washington and for the past six weeks has been in the middle west, Mr. O'Neill paid a high compliment to the spirit and ability of westerners in the line of accomplishing things. He declared that in the war work at Washington the men and women of the west were making an enviable record. "It is a fact," said he, "that when the head of a department in Washington has three prospective employees certified to him by the civil service commission and on the list appear the names of one westerner and two easterners, the department head invariably picks the westerner. That is because the westerner does things. He knows how to work and works without question. If he has to work overtime he makes no complaint about it, he simply does the work. That is why the western man or woman is favored."

Taking Enemy Property.

In relation to the work of the alien property custodian, Mr. O'Neill said that this department is charged with the gathering together and proper administration of the property in this country of all enemy aliens residing in Germany or any territory under German arms, and aliens held as prisoners of war in this country. He explained that the department even has to look after the property in this country of Belgians and French who are unfortunate enough to be within the territory overrun by German arms. This is done, he explained, that there may be proper and honest administration of the property of these people under government supervision.

In relation to the evidences of war in Washington, the speaker declared: "In Washington the war is visualized. You see the officers and men of all the allied nations in their varied uniforms, and everywhere there is hustle and bustle of work to carry on the war. Washington is crowded to overflowing with people, all intent upon doing the work of war; all helping to win the war. Working space in Washington is at a premium. Why, even the alien property custodian has offices in an apartment house where big men, accustomed to fine offices before, are now working in bath rooms and kitchenettes."

West Is Awakening. Mr. O'Neill remarked that in his travels through the middle west he had been compelled to realize that the people of the west do not yet sense the real situation as they should. He believed, however, they were awakening to the magnitude of the situation and the enormity of the problems confronting the nation.

"Some business interests," said he, "are crying for business, as usual. That is not right. There are no usual conditions and business cannot be usual. I say business as usual after the war is won, but now let everything give way to the winning of the war."

"The people of the United States

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing.—Advertisement.

must reconstruct themselves on a war basis. They must eliminate the non-essential and confine themselves to the absolute essentials for winning the war. The time is coming, and that before long, when a man won't dare face his neighbor with a chauffeur. The time is coming when the limousine will not be a badge of distinction but a lack of proper sense of patriotism and duty. Gentlemen, set an example and see how conspicuous it will be.

Duty of Girls.

"I would say further that the girl who drives an automobile is able to drive an ambulance, a truck, a supply wagon or a horse. If she is of a family of means where she could do such work without inconvenience, all the more is it her duty to do it and set an example to her less fortunate sisters. Why, in England, daughters of the nobility are working in the fields. The daughters of the wealthy in this country are surely not less patriotic."

"We should get rid of all the non-essentials. Why, in this time of war, it is a misdemeanor for a man to buy his wife a $50 hat and for him to buy her a $1000 evening gown is a felony."

Mr. O'Neill spoke of the armed guard which it is necessary to keep about the house of the nation's chief executive. "It is strange," said he, "that a nation on whose doors has been the word 'Welcome,' ever since it was a nation, that now it should be necessary to put an armed guard about the house of its chief executive to keep those who should be the friends of the nation from blowing it up."

Captain T. De Witt Foster, 145th field artillery, who was a guest at the luncheon yesterday, made a brief talk, telling the Rotarians of the work done by officers and men at the school of fire at Fort Sill, Okla. W. J. Pickering, formerly secretary of the Kansas City Rotary club, expressed a hope that the next national Rotary convention would come to Salt Lake. He gave assurance that Kansas City is for Salt Lake in the matter.

George E. Kessler, who is here to advise the city relative to the working out of the future "city beautiful," took occasion to remark that now is the time to prepare and work for the future. He urged that the slogan be to make Salt Lake the best city on earth to live and work in.

W.F. ADAMS CHOSEN AS GRAND COMMANDER OF MASONS

SALT LAKE, May 15.—Extreme simplicity marked the annual convocation of the Grand Commandery of Utah, held yesterday at the Masonic temple. The ceremonies were conducted without the least attempt at ostentation and were all concluded within a half-day.

The following officers were chosen to act during the ensuing year: William F. Adams, grand commander; Frederick C. Richmond, deputy grand commander; William J. Lynch, grand generalissimo; Harry C. Baker, grand captain general; Warren Benjamin, grand senior warden; Frank Forttime I used them and since then, whenever I have noticed any return of it, I have got a box or so of Doan's Kidney Pills at Marshall's Drug Store. They have always cured the attack."

The grand convocation devoted considerable time to a discussion of sending delegates to the triennial commandery meeting to be held in Philadelphia in July, 1919. The present need for consideration of financial resources led to reduction of the expense of the trip. This matter was not finally decided, but was left in the hands of the principal officers of the grand commandery to decide.

The Utah grand commandery annual meeting was attended by John E. Ricker, a past grand commander of Colorado, who came as the official personal representative of the most excellent grand master of the national grand end-

VETERANS MARCH IN MILITARY PAGEANT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—The world war came closer to San Francisco today.

On Market street, busiest artery in the city's business system, the usually unbroken procession of traffic of commerce gave way to American soldiers from the Presidio, who wore the first steel trench helmets seen here. Detachments of Canadian veterans, French poilus and Belgian infantrymen, a group of men in civilian clothes who were recently recruited by the British mission and a few scattered Italians who had served against the Austrians also appeared.

The parade was part of a program arranged to honor several hundred refugee Belgians and Italian officers and enlisted men who were in Russia at the time the Bolshevik government made peace with Germany, and were here today on their way back to the western front. They arrived Sunday, after having been compelled to cross Siberia and the Pacific ocean because the ways to the west from Russia were blocked by the Germans.

Why Worry Along in the Same Old Rut?

Are you lame every morning, tired all day, tortured off and on with dull, throbbing backache or sudden stabs of sharp pain? Perhaps you have tried to get at it from the outside with plasters, liniments, etc., but they do little good if your kidneys are weak. If you have dizzy headaches, neuralgia, rheumatic twinges and kidney irregularities, don't wait for worse troubles to seize you. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the time-tried, world famous remedy for weak kidneys. Read what your neighbors say about it.

This Is Ogden Testimony

Mrs. J. H. Waggard, 2629 Grant Ave., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on several occasions, and they have been of great help to me. At times my kidneys haven't acted right and my back has ached dreadfully. I would also suffer from headaches and dizzy spells, at those times. Doan's Kidney Pills cured this trouble the first time I used them and since then, whenever I have noticed any return of it, I have got a box or so of Doan's Kidney Pills at Marshall's Drug Store. They have always cured the attack."

Mrs. L. Berrell, 2341 Jackson Ave., says: "A few years ago my back was dreadfully lame and aching and I felt generally out of sorts. My kidneys didn't act right. Others of the family had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results so I got some at Driver's Drug Store. They helped me from the first. I kept on taking them until I was cured."

WOMAN WORKS 15 HOURS A DAY

Marvelous Story of Woman's Change from Weakness to Strength by Taking Druggist's Advice.

Peru, Ind.—"I suffered from a displacement with backache and dragging down pains so badly that at times I could not be on my feet and it did not seem as though I could stand it. I tried different medicines without any benefit and several doctors told me nothing but an operation would do me any good. My druggist told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with the result that I am now well and strong. I get up in the morning at four o'clock, do my housework, then go to a factory and work all day, come home and get supper and feel good. I don't know how many of my friends I have told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."
